speaking as a brit... i don't think the current antitrust settlement goes far enough. It almost certainly won't stop Microsoft's attempts to dominate the industry (witness the latest, passport - with it Microsoft hopes to control all authentication to computers and websites in the world. I for one am not at all happy with seeing a single company (especially one thats already proved itself so untrustworthy) weild so much power. You still have a chance to prevent this from happening - will you take it?
